

INVESTIGATING MR. HILL.

Other Charges Against the Supervising Architect's Office.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—In the Hill investigation to-day, Gen. Stimpson, who had testified to the excessive amounts of money advanced by Mr. Hill, his counsel for the defense now says that the Philadelphia public building was grossly overcharged by Mr. Hill and his counsel. They tried to show that his estimates of the cost of putting the stone were too low. He insisted, however, that his estimates were correct. He said he had the stone cut at the same place as Mr. Hill's office and Mr. Hill had caused his removal. He however, entertained no hard feelings toward Mr. Hill and had no desire to prosecute him.

The prosecution then proposed to examine Gen. Stimpson with regard to the contracts for the stone. Mr. Coleman said he had looked over the contracts for the stone and found them to be in order. The attorney general said he had examined the contracts for the stone and found them to be in order. The attorney general said he had examined the contracts for the stone and found them to be in order.

Mr. Hill's defense attorney, Mr. Coleman, testified that the Supervising Architect is not authorized to make contracts not to exceed money until the plan and estimate are submitted to the Board of Estimate and the Treasury. Mr. Coleman then preferred charges against Mr. Hill for furnishing stonemasons for the Philadelphia building, and asked the committee to order Mr. Hill to appear before it and then adjourned.
